MOVEMENTS OF PEOPLE

What is Going On in and Around Portsmouth and Suburban Communities Gathered, Sifted and Told in Few Words—The Past, the Present and the Future Revealed, Exposed and Foreshadowed.

Tuesday evening a lady visiting Captain Wainwright's family, on Washington street, left her purse, containing over $20, on a dresser and went into another room, returning in a few minutes, to find the purse gone. The colored cook was accused, who at first denied having seen the purse, but when threatened with arrest, produced it.

Two drunks and a disorderly conduct was all that Justice Nash had to dispense justice to yesterday in the Police Court. They were appropriately dealt with.

Justice Rustic disposed of quite a number of minor cases yesterday and last night, as did Justices C. C. Peed and R. P. Bunling.

Mr. Cuthbert J. Cleborne, son of Medical Director Cleborne, U. S. N., lately in charge of Naval Hospital at this station, has passed with credit his examination for assistant paymaster in the navy.

Mrs. M. D. Eastwood, accompanied by her daughter, Louise, will leave this morning for Bedford City, Va. From Bedford Mrs. Eastwood and daughter will visit several of the Virginia Springs.

Mr. D. G. Porter, contractor, has a road machine at work in Park View. Eight horses are required to operate the machine and it naturally attracts much attention.

The Bay Line steamer Georgia, is again on the line, after a thorough overhauling.

Wallace's circus reached Portsmouth from Newport News at an early hour this morning, and the tents will be pitched in Brighton, where the show will be given this afternoon and night, going to Norfolk the next day.

Mr. E. L. Lash has an easy riding phaeton for sale. See his "ad."

Boards are wanted in a desirable locality. See small notices in this issue.

Postmaster Burroughs has been able to secure important additional mail facilities for Portsmouth. The last Northern mail, which has heretofore been closed at 6 p. m., will after the 21st inst. be despatched at 8 p. m., thus giving our merchants and other patrons of the office two hours more in which to make up their mail, which will be of immense benefit to them.

The Park View car of the City Railway Company, in turning a sharp curve in the Fifth Ward yesterday morning managed by some means to break the trolley pole and its sealing car, necessitating its retirement from the line. Another car was put on that line later and traffic over the Park View line resumed.

Miss McCoy has postponed her dancing class until Friday night.

The Portsmouth Gun Club will enjoy its weekly live and target shoot at Columbia Park this afternoon.

A. B. Youngston, assistant chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, addressed the craft of this city and vicinity last night in Rosenbaum's Hall. His address was highly complimented.

MAKES ANOTHER CAPTURE.
Last night about 8:30 o'clock Officer John McCarris while riding down Middle street on his wheel saw two men come out of the residence of Justice Nash. The men looked suspiciously and he gave chase, following the one he captured to Crawford, to London, to Water streets, to the union depot, where he found the man, who was colored, under a car.

He locked him up and went back, notified Mr. Nash and they made a search, finding a bag with one chicken in it, and other things, and a carpenter's square. As the officer was going into the wood house a negro rushed out, nearly knocking him down. The officer shot at him but missed. There were three of them. The captured man wanted to fight the officer the worst in the world.

This is another important arrest to Mr. McCarris' credit.

A WRIT OF MANDAMUS.
Yesterday Judge Prentiss, of the County Circuit Court, heard a writ of mandamus sued out by Mr. Laurence Waring, of Norfolk, to compel Mr. A. H. Martin to give him all the records of the latter's office to be published in the County Record, a paper published by Mr. Waring. Mr. Martin said that the taking of the records interfered with the business of the office and that he was entitled to compensation for preparing the papers. Messrs. Crocker & Crocker represented Mr. Martin and Mr. Waring himself. The court decided that Mr. Waring could examine the papers, and an appeal was noted to the Court of Appeals.

MRS. AMES' FUNERAL.
Yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock the funeral and burial of Mrs. M. A. Ames, of Nansemond county, took place in a family burial plot. The Rev. V. E. Bingham, assisted by Rev. H. H. Bennett, conducted the services and the following gentlemen were the pallbearers: T. E. Trotman, L. A. Deans, W. G. Creech, Ed. Ames, W. E. Baylor, B. F. Ames, Captain J. T. Griffin, J. E. Biddgood.

RETAIL CLERKS ORGANIZE.
The retail clerks of this city held a meeting last night in the office of Mr. H. L. Page with a view of organizing a branch of the National Retail Clerks' Union. The meeting was adjourned to meet next Tuesday night, September 26, at 8:30 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Thomas Nolan, corner King and Middle streets.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED.
At a meeting of the B. Y. P. U. of the Park View Baptist Church, held on Monday night, the following officers were elected for the ensuing six months: President, Carroll Myers; Vice-President, W. R. Chaud; Secretary, Willie M. Trent; Treasurer, Grover Mayo; Organist, Miss Annie (Mrs.)

NAVAL NEWS.

JOHN T. DREWRY BURIED.
Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock from his late residence, 407 Dinwiddie street, the funeral of John T. Drewry took place, attended by a large number of friends.

The Rev. Z. S. Farland conducted the services. Portsmouth Lodge, No. 52, B. P. O. E., attended in a body and performed their burial services at the grave, which are very solemn and impressive.

Following were the pallbearers: Messrs. J. F. Pace, J. T. Dolan, C. B. Lash, Ben. Taylor, G. A. Tabb, C. E. Jones and H. F. Butt, Jr.

THE CLAIM OF
GRIMES BATTERY

Attorney-General Montague Says
Officers and Men Should be Paid

THE LAW AGAINST IT

The Mayor of Portsmouth Exceeded His Authority When He Ordered the Battery on Duty at Ocean View Beyond Its Jurisdiction—The Legislature Alone Can Order Payment of This Claim.

(Special to Virginian-Pilot.)
Richmond, Va., Sept. 20.—Attorney-General Montague has rendered the following opinion in regard to the claim of the Grimes' Battery, of Portsmouth, for services rendered as patrols during the yellow-fever scare:

Col. Morton Mayne, Auditor Public Accounts.

Sir,—I have been unable to consider earlier your recent reference of the account of Battery C, 1st Battalion Artillery, in the sum of $1,364.56, and your request for my opinion as to your authority to pay the same.

The order calling forth the Battery of Artillery is issued by the Mayor of Portsmouth to the commandant of the battery, and commands the same "to parade at Ocean View, Va., on the 1st of August, 1899, and there to obey such orders as may be given according to law." Thus you will observe that this order commands the battery to aid the civil authorities, not within the territorial jurisdiction of Portsmouth, but some nine miles distant therefrom, at Ocean View, in the county of Norfolk. It further appears that in pursuance of this order the battery did very efficiently aid the quarantine patrol at Ocean View in preventing the landing of persons from the infected yellow fever districts in and around the National Soldiers' Home, near Hampton.

Whether this is the class of civil authorities competent to receive the military aid provided for in the statute is, from my point of view, needless to consider; for the larger question as to the authority of the Mayor to issue an order at all requiring the aid of the military at a place beyond his territorial jurisdiction must first be disposed of.

EXCEEDED THE AUTHORITY.
Section 363 of the Code provides, in certain cases, that it shall be lawful for the sheriff of any county, or the Mayor of any city, to call "upon the commandant of any division, brigade, regiment, or company," and it shall be the duty of such officer "upon whom such call is made, to order out, in aid of the civil authorities, the military force, or any part thereof, under his command." What civil authorities are here meant? Manifestly the civil authorities of the county of such sheriff or of the city of such mayor.

The form of the summons from the sheriff or mayor, in said section, in which is prescribed in said section, in terms requires that the requested aid must be given within the county or city of such sheriff or mayor. Besides, the Mayor of Portsmouth is functus officio beyond the territorial jurisdiction of his city. So likewise are the civil authorities of that city without law or authority to perform a quarantine patrol at Ocean View, a place clearly beyond the territorial jurisdiction of their city.

NO CIVIL AUTHORITIES AIDED.
Such so-called civil authorities had no legal existence at Ocean View, and therefore there were no civil authorities to be aided by the military. The sheriff of Norfolk county, or his deputy, were alone authorized to issue an order for such military aid within his county, and neither of them issued such an order or united in the order of the Mayor of Portsmouth.

From these considerations it seems plain that neither the sheriff of a county nor the mayor of a city has authority under our law to order out troops to perform service in any other county or city within the Commonwealth, and, therefore, the order in question and the services thereunder performed are wholly without lawful warrant. Consequently, in that both the order and services are illegal, I am of opinion that there are no present funds in the Treasury available to pay the account in question.

As to the merits of the claim I have no official concern. That these officers and men should be paid for their services, performed in good faith, I take it no one will dispute. But this is the province of the Legislature. I have only to construe the law, and as I understand it the disbursement of public moneys must be in strict conformity to public law.

Very respectfully,
A. J. MONTAGUE,
Attorney General.

WALTER COTTON
ON THE STAND

He Says All the Witnesses
Against Him Lied.

NEVER SAW THE JEWELRY

The Argument to Begin This Morning, Captain Chas. T. Bland Opening for the State, Col. Griffin to Follow Messrs. L. C. Phillips and W. H. Parker—Much Interest Maintained in the Verdict of the Jury.

The second day's trial of Walter Cotton, charged with the murder of Mr. Chas. Wyatt, going on in the Hustings Court, was a very interesting one, a very large number of people congregating to hear the evidence and to get a glimpse of the accused.

He bore himself with that apparent unconcern which has marked his course through all this trouble, and after gazing about the room and allowing his eyes to rest upon you, he would then bow his head and seem to enjoy a "nap."

He occupied a seat behind his counsel and when not engaged in doing what has been mentioned, he would whisper a few words to the men who are fighting his battle, the greatest in his life, and which is more to him than he seems to appreciate.

Col. Griffin and Capt. Bland watched the proceedings carefully, and the full knowledge of the different witnesses for the State was drawn out.

At 10 o'clock court was opened, and then the work of the day began. Dr. S. Hope was the first witness called, and that gentleman testified as to the kind of wounds inflicted on Mr. Wyatt, their nature and where located. He said that they were unquestionably done with blunt instrument of some kind, and identified the iron pin in court as the one shown him at Mr. Wyatt's home early that morning when called to see the dying man.

Mr. Joseph Martin, who lives on Glasgow street, in giving in his evidence, said that on the day the murder was committed that night, about noon he saw Cotton and another negro whom he did not know come down to Scott's Creek bridge. The man with Cotton went into Mr. Wyatt's and Cotton kept on and went into Mr. Sturgis' bar. They then met and sat down on a beer keg, and one of them got up and went into the store above Mr. Sturgis' place.

Their actions were so suspicious that he watched them until they went away and he then went in the places where the men went and asked what those men wanted, and he was told at each place that they asked for water.

Mr. Chas. T. West, police detective of Norfolk, was next placed on the stand, and his evidence was about the same as given in the preliminary trial, and fully corroborated that given in previously by Sergeant Heppel.

Mr. J. W. Tauschert, the well known jeweler of this city, testified about the watch, saying that he sold it to Frank Wyatt several years ago and recognized it by a private mark he had placed on it.

Mr. S. R. Holland, a brickmason, told all about the finding of the money drawer on High street extended, about the squares south of Mr. Owen Cosgrove's place. Mr. William Wyatt, half brother of Mr. Chas. Wyatt, identified the watch as being the property of his brother.

WILLIAM WEAVER TALKS.

The next witness called, and one who was looked forward to as being a most interesting one, was William Weaver. He said he had known Cotton for some time, but didn't know anything about the murder. He did know, however, somewhere about the 4th of August, he saw Cotton in the house of a woman named Bell; saw Cotton there, who told him that he was broke and asked him to pawn a watch he had.

"I want a dollar," said Cotton, Weaver said; I asked Cotton where he got the watch and he said he had won it in a game. I pawned a watch for five dollars and gave Cotton a dollar. Cotton admitted to me that he gave me the watch to pawn, which I did in my own name. Detectives Heppel and West heard him acknowledge it.

The watch was shown Weaver and he said that was the watch he pawned for Cotton, who said at the time that he did not think he would get it out of pawn.

Jane Hardy, of Norfolk, told how she met Cotton on Thursday, but did not know the date or the month. She said Cotton came to her door, and knowing him and liking him, she asked him to lend her five cents. Cotton said, "I have not got five cents," and walked off a few steps; came back and said, "I haven't got any money, but you can have the watch, and here are pieces of jewelry—earrings, a breast pin and a small locket. She said she didn't think much of them and threw them up on the stairs, and the next thing she knew the detectives were looking for them. He came to my house said she, between 10 and 11 o'clock in the morning. Mary Jane Gregory was present and saw Cotton give Jane Hardy the jewelry. It was on Thursday morning, between 10 and 11 o'clock, and she thought it was on the 2d of August.

Annie Smith fully corroborated what Hardy and Gregory said, except as to the time, which she said she could not tell with the least degree of accuracy. All she did know was that she had not been up more than a half hour and had not had her breakfast.

THE NEW WITNESS.
Emma Hill was called. She has never testified in the case and her evidence was damaging to the cause of the accused.

She said that on Thursday, August 3d, between 12 and 1 o'clock, Cotton came to the house in which she was living. He was asked to treat, and in pulling his money out of his pocket he dropped a small gold watch, of the ladies' size. She asked him whose it was and he said, "It belongs to my girl, in Portsmouth."

She said Cotton put the watch back in his pocket. In a few minutes she went up stairs, and while looking out of the window saw Weaver coming down Hardy's lane, and he was in front of the house Cotton came out had a conversation with Weaver and she saw the former pass something to the latter, who went off, with the remark that he would be back in a few minutes. Cotton waited, but Weaver, not coming back as soon as he thought he ought to, went up the alley as if he was going to look for Weaver. She identified Mrs. Wyatt's watch as the one she saw Cotton have.

Here the State rested its case.

COTTON ON THE STAND.
Walter Cotton was sworn and he took the stand to testify in his own behalf. He said he was in Norfolk all Wednesday night, the 2d of August, and got to his home, on Queen street, in this city, about 4 o'clock. He told how he fell asleep in a house in Norfolk after a crap game broke up, and of his crossing the ferry and going to sleep there.

The City Hall clock pointed to five minutes to 4 when he passed it. He afterwards went to Berkley, then to Norfolk, and then to Jane Hardy's and Sissie Bell's.

He says that Weaver gave him the watch to pawn, but he afterward changed his mind, concluding not to do so. He said he asked Weaver where he got the watch and Weaver told him that he had "turned a trick" for it, explaining that it meant "showing a man up." He denied in toto that he had given Weaver the watch to pawn, saying that when he gave the watch to Weaver, he told him that he was going to pawn it, and only returned it to the man from whom he got it, after he refused to pawn it. Cotton said Weaver told him to get $5 on it, but on account of trouble he had in pawning a watch in July he was afraid to do it.

When asked by Captain Bland why he had accepted any money from Weaver, which was gotten by the pawning of the watch, he said he replied that Weaver owed him two dollars and paid him one on account. He got five dollars on the watch, but he said Weaver told him that he was going to gamble that night and needed the other four dollars, which he kept, he (Cotton) not intending to get in any game that night. Continuing his story, he denied ever seeing the breast pin or ear ring belonging to Mrs. Wyatt, and all he knew about the watch was what he had told, and it was the truth, too, said he.

"Then what all the rest of the witnesses have said about seeing you give that jewelry to Jane Hardy is not true," questioned Colonel Griffin.

"No, sir; not a word. They are all mistaken."

"Do you mean to say," asked Capt. Bland, "that all of the other witnesses, including Mr. Martin, who saw you at Scottsville, near Mr. Wyatt's store on the day preceding the murder of Mr. Wyatt that night, lie?"

"Yes, sir; that's what I mean. I am the only one who has told a straight story."

The defense, Messrs. Parker and Phillips, who are making a strong fight for their client, consulted after Cotton left the stand, and upon their motion Judge Watts adjourned court until 10 o'clock this morning to allow these gentlemen to get two witnesses whom they desire to summon.

The prisoner was taken back to jail after Colonel Gregory and Cotton's counsel had practically agreed upon the instructions. Captain Bland will open the argument this morning, followed by the gentlemen for the defense, and Col. Griffin will close.

ALBERT HAINES IDENTIFIED.
Albert Haines, who was arrested for setting fire to the buildings destroyed on Harrison street Monday night, by fire, is in a warm place now himself.

Mr. James Broughton, uncle of Police Officer Broughton, called at the jail yesterday morning to see if he could identify the man whom he saw the night of the fire running after setting the house of Mr. Broughton on fire.

"That's the man. I could have shot him with my pistol when he was running away from my house after having set it on fire," was the declaration made by the gentleman when he saw Haines in the city jail.

Haines was in a cell with other prisoners, and was picked out by Mr. Broughton as the man. The negro tried to conceal his face when he saw the Broughton enter the jail. The latter said that Haines was around his house on Sunday night and it is thought he was given his bearings then for the fire. He will have an examination on Friday. Justice Nash continuing the case until that time.

DELIGHTFUL CARD PARTY.
A most enjoyable card party was given Tuesday evening by Mrs. Elizabeth Peed at her hospitable home in Churchland, in honor of Misses Mamie Jordan and Louise Britt, of Suffolk. Mr. Henry Trotman won a prize, a solid watch, and Mr. C. Duke carried off the booty by winning a bag of pennants and a nice tie. There was delightful music, including a quartette—Mr. Henry Rowe, Miss E. Berkley, Miss Virginia Jordan and Mr. G. E. Lane.
